

Session 8

Miss Brophy's group

Read this extract from the book carefully.

extract 7

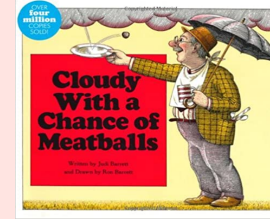

The sanitation department gave up. The job was too big. Everyone feared for their lives. They couldn't go outside most of the time. Many houses had been badly damaged by giant meatballs, shops were boarded up and there was no more school for the children.

So a decision was made to abandon the town of Chewandswallow. It was a matter of survival.

The people glued together the giant pieces of stale bread sandwich style with peanut butter...took the absolute necessities with them, and set sail on their rafts for a new land.

Use extract 7 to help you answer these questions.
Remember, find the answer in the text first.

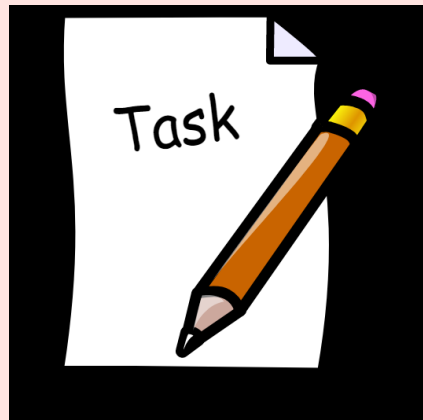

What had the houses mainly been damaged by?

What does the word abandon mean?

How did the people make a raft?

If you had to build a raft made out of food, what would you use? Draw a label a picture of your raft.

Finish with a minimum 15 minutes on Spelling Shed on the lists you have been set.
